Martial Expense

"During the period from 1903 to 1924 our disbursements for arms, measured in terms of present day money, rose from $4.00 to nearly $6.00 per capita, while we allowed our other government expenditures to multiply more than three-fold, from about $24.00 to almost $86.00 per head, an increase of nearly $62.00," says William Howard Gardiner in an article dealing with the Reduction of Armaments in the current North American Review. Basing his statements on figures published by the National Industrial Conference Board, Gardiner makes the point that our tax burdens are due not so much to the often alleged "crushing burden of armaments" as to the orgy of spending, now prevalent in states and cities, and the consequent mounting of local taxation.

The American delegates, therefore, in the view of Gardiner, should be governed at the next Reduction of Armaments Conference by the fundamental principle of retaining adequate means to uphold the sovereign power and international policies of the United States, to safeguard all its territories, to protect its world wide commerce, and to support the rights of its citizens in foreign parts, rather than by the erroneous assumption that reduction of armaments is imperative on financial grounds—a sort of reduction-at-any-price policy. For this naval critic points out that although armaments insurance average to cost the other great powers nearly $4.00 per thousand of their total national wealth, the corresponding cost to the United States is less than $2.00 per thousand whereas it is said we average to pay over $9.00 per thousand for fire insurance.

With this preface, Gardiner outlines the political and naval considerations which confront the Reduction of Armaments Conference, the Preparatory Commission for which is meeting at Geneva this summer.

The author points out that the United States—with Canada and Mexico—is a large island in contrast to the great world-continent comprising Europe, Asia and Africa, about two-thirds of all habitable land over four-fifths of the human race. In our insular position we are far from self-sufficient and immutably dependent on the conduct and control of overseas communications. Dispositions that are made concerning our navy, therefore, are of vital concern to our progress and prosperity, and even to our safety.

"Although the central position of North America in the world of maritime trade is a potential advantage, the maintenance of our standard of living rests on our being assured of necessary imports, of markets open to our products, and of reliable means of collecting our imports and distributing our exports. If there is anything to be learned from his-

SAN FRANCISCO, June 9.—The trans-polar dirigible Norge which flew over the North Pole from Spitsbergen to Teller Alaska is going to fly across the United States according to an announcement made today by the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce.

Officials of the Chamber of Commerce have cabled Roald Amundsen famous explorer and head of the Arctic Expedition urging that he include San Francisco in the Norge's itinerary.

The giant dirigible according to the Chamber of Commerce statement is to be assembled at Camp Lewis, Washington. The Norge's crew will have the assistance of both army and navy experts in reconstructing the dirigible.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—In a new and drastic campaign to stop the smuggling of illicit liquor into the United States, President Coolidge today urged Congress to appropriate an additional $755,000 for the Customs Service.

The entire sum will be devoted to enlarging the service along the Canadian border, President Coolidge said in a letter to Congress.

John D. Spreckels
Funeral is Held

(By Universal Service)

SAN DIEGO, June 9.—Scores of intimate friends and employees of John D. Spreckels, who died here Monday, paid tribute to the financier and philanthropist at a private funeral services held at his Coronado home this afternoon.

As the number of those attending today's services necessarily was limited, civic memorial services will be held Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Orkan Pavilion, Balboa Park, when thousands of San Diegans are expected to pay tribute to his memory.

Mayor John L. Bacon announced the public tribute and appointed a committee to arrange the services. Flags drooped at half mast all over the city today, and during the time of the funeral, 2:30 to 3 o'clock, business houses suspended activities in response to a request from Mayor Bacon.

The funeral services were conducted by Dr. Roy Campbell.

The pallbearers were selected from those who have been for 30 or more years and still are in active service in the Spreckels interests. They were James MacMullen, M. J. Perrin, William Clayton, H. McNutt, S. H. Holton, W. T. Laird, Robert Irwin and D. B. Martin.

The ashes are to be sent to San Francisco after cremation.

For a period of two minutes silent tribute to Spreckels was paid by all employees of the street car company, ferry company and San Diego, Arizona railway at 2:45 o'clock.

The funeral party crossed the bay and from Coronado on the ferry Ramona, which was banked with flowers and funeral decorations.

Telegrams of condolence were received yesterday and today from all over the country by Claus Spreckels, the dead financier's son.

Bob's Up Again

Robert P. Easley, of Antioch, assemblyman from this district was in town yesterday and made the official announcement that he would be a candidate to succeed himself. So far as the Republicans are concerned, it is not believed that Easley will have any opposition, as he is very strong in all parts of the county, and made a record in the last session of the legislature of which any man can well be proud.

It is safe to say that Easley will represent Contra Costa again in the state legislature, and his vote at the primary will be more of a record breaking one than it was two years ago.

During the election campaign of 1924, Robert P. Easley, incumbent Assemblyman from Contra Costa county, made but one promise to his constituency, namely:

If sent to the Legislature he would fearlessly do his duty

Osborne Manager Of S. O. Refinery

According to official announcements made by the Standard Oil company yesterday, Robert T. Osborne becomes manager of the Richmond refinery.

The new assistant superintendent is the new assistant superintendent.

Not only at the plant but in financial and commercial circles in Richmond where interest in affairs of the Standard Oil company is keenly felt, the appointments have met with favor.

Osborne for the past thirteen years has been connected with the local plant and was directly in line for appointment. He succeeds W. D. Mason who recently resigned to accept a similar position in Philadelphia with the Sun Oil company. Osborne has filled various positions at the plant and that he won the confidence of the company is verified by his appointment as manager of the Richmond plant.

Hamilton, who was assistant superintendent has been with the company since 1913 and Moorehead was appointed to fill Hamilton's position.

PENNSYLVANIA ELECTION IS

Attempt to Reveal That Five
Million Was Spent in Pepper
Campaign

(By Universal Service)

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Outstripping as a spending orgy the notorious Newberry election of a decade ago, the huge sums expended in the sensational Pennsylvania Republican Senatorial contest were slowly but inevitably unfolded to the gaze of the Senate slush fund committee today.

These developments were produced as the Senate probers began their determined task of revealing that at least $5,000,000 was spent in behalf of the defeated Senator Pepper alone.

P.S. Stahlmecker, treasurer of the Clifford Pinchot campaign testified that $195,000 was spent by the Pinchot forces. The identical amount which Newberry spent and, for the manner of spending which, he was quoted from the Senate.

Pinchot testified that he and members of his family and near relatives contributed over $143,000 to his own campaign.

Stahlmecker testified that he was reliably informed that $500,000 was the budget of the Pittsburgh headquarters of Pepper, and that Pittsburgh was but one of many Pepper campaign headquarters.

Representative William S. Vare, the unsuccessful candidate of the winning wet platform, will soon be forced to explain the range of his campaign funds, the committee announced.

Pinchot, first witness at the opening of the slush fund probe, testified that his personal contribution was $63,767.31.

The contributions were: Mrs. Cornelia Price Pinchot, wife of the senator, $20,000; Mrs. Chas. B. Wood, of Washington, Pinchot's aunt, $65,000; Amos Pinchot, brother of the governor, $10,000.

George W. Woodruff, attorney General for Pennsylvania, also contributed $11,000, leaving only about $6,000 in contributions received from sources exclusive of Pinchot's relatives and immediate friends.

The governor, who made the race a bitter one, was largely silent, although he admitted only "that he received contributions from the Women's Christian Temperance Union, or other dry organizations, but he said he did not know where they came from."

Not were contributions received from labor organizations which supported him, as far as he knew, the governor said.

The revelation that the financial side of his campaign was largely "a family affair" made Pinchot the target for a few sharp comments by Senator Goff, Republican of Virginia, a member of the committee.

"Is it a fact that the law of Pennsylvania places no specific limit on the funds that may be expended in a primary campaign?" asked Goff.

"This is correct," Pinchot responded.

"Neither does it limit the gratitude of one's friends," Goff queried, while the governor sat silent.

In answer to a question by Senator Reed, Republican of Missouri, committee chairman, Pinchot explained that he had no objection to the expenditures of his two opponents in the campaign, Senator George Wharton Pepper, and Representative William S. Vare, both of Philadelphia.

The governor was vigorously cross examined by Senator Reed, leader of the Senate's wet forces, regarding the activities of dry organizations and the charges of election frauds that have been heard frequently in Pennsylvania since the primaries.

"What, if anything, do you know about election frauds?" Reed asked.

"I have the outward signs of election frauds as reports have come to me from a number of persons," responded Pinchot.

The governor explained that he was without direct evidence of fraud because his information was based solely upon newspaper articles and hearsay reports.

Reed then asked Pinchot to state in a statement in which Pinchot is alleged to have charged that over 18,000 voters were registered illegally in Pittsburgh.

MILLER TO
OF ASSESSOR

John A. Miller, popular Richmond resident and known throughout the county for his ability and good fellowship yesterday announced his candidacy for the office of county assessor. Miller has the assurance of a great deal of support from people from every walk of life from every precinct in the county.

Reared as a farmer boy in the Livermore Valley, John came to Richmond in the year 1913, bringing his mother and eight younger brothers and sisters soon after the death of his father, and for ten long years he staid by her and the children as head of the family.

Through perseverance and fortitude he worked his way up from the very bottom, having often been laughed at as a young man when he walked five miles in rain, coat and boots on winter nights to attend the old Richmond Polytechnic High in an earnest effort to get his education.

John has been identified with practically every progressive movement started in Richmond in the past ten years.

In speaking of the announcement today John said, "I have been besieged by great numbers of my friends to run for one of the other offices of the county, and I am sorry indeed that it will be impossible to please everybody as to the particular office, but in making the final decision I decided to select the office which I felt I could best fill with absolute satisfaction to the taxpayers."

My five years of connection with the Federal Income Tax Department has given me the insight as to practically every land sale made in the county in that period of time, and my four years as chairman of the Park Commission has particularly acquainted me with Richmond land values.

My campaign will be conducted in a good clean sportsmanlike way in every respect, and if elected I shall endeavor to do everything in my power to treat each and every one in a fair and impartial manner.

Watson And
Mrs. Dooling

Prominent Pair Surprise Friends
And are Married in Martinez
On Honeymoon in North

Responding to the spirit that is ever a part of the month of roses, two of Richmond's well known townspeople, Harry O. Watson, prominent realty dealer, and Mrs. Reta B. Dooling, a teacher in the city schools, slipped away from their friends late yesterday afternoon and after a brief call at the office of the county clerk in Martinez, stepped in for a visit to their old time friend Dr. Thomas A. Boyer, County Probation Officer, at which time in the presence of a couple of young ladies, Miss Agnes C. Ring of the probation office and Miss Dell Woods of the clerk's office, they were pronounced husband and wife.

Watson has been a resident of Richmond for some sixteen years, during which time he has been prominently identified with the Standard Oil Company, has served six years on the city council and has otherwise made for himself a place in the esteem of a wide circle of friends.

Mrs. Dooling has been for some years one of Richmond's most popular teachers and a prominent worker in the First Baptist church.

Following the ceremony the happy couple started on a motor trip to Hawaii and other northern points going by way of the Willamette valley, and after a couple of weeks expect to return by way of the Humboldt county redwoods.

Following their return to Richmond they will make their home in the Winton Apartments 1903 Roosevelt avenue, where they will be at home to their friends.

Former President Of Hawaii Dead

(By Universal Service)

HONOLULU, June 9.—Sanford Ballard Dole, former president of the Republic of Hawaii and later appointed governor of the territory of Hawaii, died at his home, 1903 Roosevelt street residence here at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon.

His passing came quietly in the privacy of a few relatives and close friends. He suffered a stroke of paralysis two months ago.

Dole was born in the Hawaiian Islands April 23, 1844.

Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Kelly, 905 Florida avenue, will spend the week-end in Vacaville.

In every respect, and if elected I shall endeavor to do everything in my power to treat each and every one in a fair and impartial manner.

County Realtors Endorse
Plan To Open Shepard
Canyon For New Highway

The Contra Costa County Board of Realtors in session last night at the Ala Costa Inn in Walnut Creek endorsed the plan of constructing a highway through Shepard Canyon into the Red Wood Canyon Road and into Oakland.

The endorsement followed the report of the county committee on the project and the appearance of three Oakland speakers.

Calvert Bowles representing twenty-five of the clubs of East Oakland spoke in favor of the road. He was followed by Harold French of Oakland who stated that Congressman Carter had stated that he would make an endeavor to have considerable funds from the state allocated toward the construction of the road, and that the road would then be designated as the end of the Victory Highway.

J. V. Bingham of Oakland spoke of means of financing the project by bond issue and the proposed road would cost from $450,000 to $800,000.

It was the feeling of all of the speakers and the county board that another road is needed to supplement the Tunnel highway.

Ben Blow western representative of the Victory Highway spoke in favor of the proposed road after it had been outlined to him by the various speakers.

In endorsing the road the county board declared itself of the opinion that the proposed route would be for the best interests of the county and open up a vast territory in the southern end of the county.

The county realtors authorized E. B. Bull, A. L. Paulsen and J. B. Johns to be official representatives of the board to the Eastbay Property Owners Council of Oakland.

P. M. Sanford, president of the Richmond Chamber of Commerce was in attendance at the session and discussed the harbor development of Richmond and outlined to the realtors the proposed leasing of the waterfront facilities of the city to the Parr Terminal Corporation of Oakland.

OTHER VICTIM RECOVERING AT LOCAL HOSPITAL

Valiant Efforts of Rescue Squad
Fails to Bring Breath Back
To Frank Fray

Frank Fray of San Pablo is dead and Ben Martinez of this city is in the cottage hospital recovering from the effects of shock and suffocation when the two men were buried in the cavern of a sewer ditch on the state highway south of Pinole yesterday afternoon. Efforts to revive Fray with an inhalator rushed from the Union Oil Refinery at Oleum in charge of Kyle Lutz, Safety Engineer of the plant were fruitless.

Lutz was assisted by Ed Fawcett an employee of the Oleum plant.

The rescue party worked until early this morning in their effort to revive Fray. Hope for the man was revived at 10:30 last night and he was rushed to the Cottage hospital where artificial respiration and other attempts to revive him were continued.

The two men were grading the bottom of a thirteen foot ditch being dug by L. L. Page who has the contract from the city of Pinole for the laying of the sewer main. When they reached a point in the excavation which is crossed by a road leading into the state highway the side walls of the ditch gave way burying both of the workers. It is believed that the constant vibration caused by cars passing over the state highway which is a few feet from the ditch and the filled in land and gravel from which the intersecting road was constructed caused the walls to give way.

Rescuers headed by L. L. Page immediately started rescue work and in a short time had the men removed from the excavation. Fellow workers risked their lives in going down into the excavation the walls of which threatened to slide further.

Martinez was the first to be recovered and he was shortly revived and rushed to the Cottage hospital where he is reported to be well on the road to recovery.

THE RIGHT BATTLE

Some say that as long as human nature is cantankerous there is no need to expect the abolition of war. Others claim that to deprive man of a chance to fight would be like killing the mountain lions on the Kaibab plateau—such a distortion of natural processes that evolutionary weaknesses would develop. We all know the furore over the too populous deer ranges.

The county agricultural agent reported yesterday on a battle that all can enjoy. It is a battle against the insidious, if not very hurrahinspiring and romantic forces of disease. When the attention of fight-loving mankind is directed toward the obliteration of evils, whether crime or disease or poverty, the world will have arrived at the threshold of the millennium. These are battles that will never be won, wars to which no armistice can put a period. The world can look forward to an unending conflict, so none need worry about running out of material.

It is impossible to pump a perfect vacuum, to attain the absolute zero of temperature or to do a lot of other things, but we can creep up toward infinity and take wonderful satisfaction in the progress. Similarly we can approach that perfect state of civilization which, possibly constitutes the longed-for heaven. If we can breed and train our dairy herds to 100 per cent immunity from disease, why can we not do something for ourselves?

SENSIBLE YOUNG WOMAN

With the practical common sense for which the citizens of her country are famous, Princess Juliana of Holland, heir to the throne, says on her seventeenth birthday that she is studying law because when her turn comes Holland may not want a queen and she wishes to be equipped for the career of one not born to the royal purple. The dynasty at The Hague, though feminist, seems to have a durable foundation in the love and loyalty of Queen Wilhelmina's subjects, and the princess need not anxiously contemplate the prospect of eviction. But whether she becomes a queen or accepts the status of a commoner, her knowledge of the law will serve her well. Indeed, it is difficult to imagine any field of human effort in which at least the elements of a legal education are not of value. The throne of Wilhelmina, which Juliana will probably inherit, is like that of Victoria, chiefly endeared to the people by the fact that the domestic life of the palace in its essential simplicity is like that of every household in a home-loving land. —Philadelphia Public Ledger.

It is said that many people over in Germany are now studying a German translation of a book on the United States Constitution. A little constitution studying wouldn't be a bad thing in America either.

There is just room in the present American scene for one more campaign, drive or movement. That is a campaign, drive or movement which will have as its object the slashing of state and local expenditures and taxes.—Springfield Union.

His latest speeches seem to indicate that Mr. Mussolini is getting tired of being all dressed up and no place to go.

Perhaps the reason a legislature is slow to adjourn is that it gives people a chance to talk behind its back.—Atlanta Constitution.

POLITICAL REVOLUTION

Andrew Jackson, hero of the War of 1812, became president in 1829. President Jackson was headstrong, absolutely honest and utterly fearless. His blunt speech and decided action made many bitter enemies, but he had also many devoted friends who knew him to be a warm-hearted, true-hearted, high-minded man.

When President Jackson began his administration his friends demanded government offices. Jackson removed about two thousand men from their positions to give their places and salaries to those who had voted for him. He had, however, done an unprecedented thing. In the forty years which had passed since the adoption of the Constitution, less than one-tenth of that number of office holders had been removed.

Jefferson had removed more persons than any previous president, his object being to give each political party an equal share of offices. When he had announced his intention he said that he should ask only the following questions respecting an applicant: "Is he honest? Is he capable? Is he faithful to the Constitution?"

President Jackson, however, after making sweeping dismissals of the men who did not agree with him in politics filled their places with those only who voted as he thought right. He believed he was effecting a great reform and honestly and thought the change would benefit the country.

However, the action of President Jackson served only to establish the "spoils system," which Webster, Clay, Calhoun, Benton and other eminent statesmen denounced. A New York senator once declared that "to the voters belonged the spoils," meaning that the successful political party in an election has the right to make all it can out of it in the way of offices and salaries.

Since then many prominent men have labored to free the government from the influence of this system, which turns out many unfaithful officers and experienced officers every few years only to put new and untried persons in their places.

BROKEN HEARTS of HOLLYWOOD

BY EDWARD CLARK

Copyrighted by Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
'BROKEN HEARTS OF HOLLYWOOD' with Louise Dresser is a Warner pictorialization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Mutually attracted, beautiful Betty Terwilliger and handsome Hal Chutney arrive in Hollywood as prize winners of newspaper contests for movie tryouts. Marshall, reputed to be responsible for many of the "broken hearts of Hollywood," takes an interest in Betty. Hal and Betty are depressed and amazed by the number of people seeking work. Movie outsiders see a mysterious resemblance in Betty to someone they cannot remember. Betty is handed a scanty one-piece bathing suit to don, while Hal, who never rode a horse, finds himself cast with a bunch of real cowboys.

Everyone in the room seemed to know everyone else; Hal felt lonely, and out of the friendly circle.

But Hal was, after all, a bright chap and when he could get his brain functioning sanely, what with the excitement and confusion, the shouting and swearing, he grimly resolved that the wisest course would be to conceal from these rough citizens the fact that he was a greenhorn. He would watch them closely, as to dressing, and making-up, and mannerisms—then imitate them as he went along. Now or never, if he had any ability to act, was the time to call it into play.

He industriously recalled all the harem cowboys he had ever seen on the screen, and with them in

The roar of laughter shook the dressing table mirrors. Hal felt a nonchalance, and hurried to change his clothes. "Aw, give a guy some elbow room, can't yuh?" he growled at the profane men on either side of him. They looked at him quickly; he was big and husky. But even while they stared, Hal threw aside his coat, tie, and hat with a swagger, and started to attempt to roll a cigarette with one hand—just as he had seen Tom Mix do it times without end. Just as he had noticed and watched some of the cowboys in this room doing around him. Of course, his unpracticed fingers made a sorry mess of the trick; and although he tried to hide his ineptness, his dressing table neighbors saw through his pose in that flash, and nudges began to go around the room.

From that moment some of the noise died away, as all hands began to surreptitiously watch and enjoy Hal's attempts to prove his manly right to be considered as "one of them."

Hal presently became conscious that he was the cynosure for all eyes, and he thought it was because he was so good. Of course, there were certain little mishaps, such as putting on his B. V. D.'s on his spurs—the latter a stunt that called for particular awkwardness—but Hal thought that he had covered up his mistakes so quickly and cleverly that the fellows could not possibly "get wise."

"Pulling these on and off every day for ten years, a guy is bound to get careless!" he chuckled hoarsely, after he had discovered that chaps are seamless, but that he had given his seat by putting the front where the seat "wasn't."

"Where did you cross brands, pardner?" grinned one sly puncher. "Arise!" said Hal offhand in his best imitation of a hardboiled rancher.

And the roar that went up when Hal thus innocently confessed himself as an ex-horse thief shook the dressing table mirrors, and left Hal exceedingly mystified.

The assistant director, returning at this moment from a brief excursion elsewhere, put a quick stop to the bantering by ordering all hands on the set. While Hal quickly completed his dressing by taking futuristic note of how the other boys had their lassoes hitched to their belts and so on, the hard-bitted cow punchers smacked their lips in joyous anticipation of fun on the set at the greenhorn's expense.

The assistant director, frantic at the last minute to discover that Hal had no make-up on, charged upon him and pushed him back into the seat, then pattered sunburn powder thickly on his face.

"Your mug would look as shiny as a coon's heel without this!" he snarled.

Hal had by this time noted that all executives of this high pressure industry snarl—never talk. Presently he was following in the wake of the crowd of cowboys as they clanked, booted and bespurred, down the iron-treaded cement stairways and out of the buildings across the street to an adjacent lot, where was set up the exterior of a Western mining village saloon.

Hal, imitating the peculiar bow-legged roll of the men ahead of him—a deformity and a gait that comes to legs spread since pliable childhood and the bulging sides of horses—looked nonchalantly with his larriat and wished that the boys and girls back in Centipede, Iowa, could see him now. He hoped that this picture would be shown at the Coliseum Theatre on Main Street. He made up his mind to face the camera as much as possible, with the ulterior thought of appearing to best advantage for the edification of his mother and sister and friends.

In the street outside the building were a number of small boys, and clustered around the actual set. He saw—in the yard, outside the limits beyond which small boys could not penetrate past jaunted watchmen—was the usual crowd of hangers-on; extra girls waiting to be called, technicians, assistants. Hal staggered unconsciously for the benefit of all these—the small boys in particular—and swelled his chest to see their admiring looks. Observing the many girls around the set, he recalled all his Main Street shelling talents and showed off for all he was worth.

Unfortunately, owing to his inexperienced twirling of it, his larriat became uncoiled and coiled to the ground, catching in his feet and pitching him face first upon the set directly under the nose of the teary director, to the vast amusement of the onlookers and the other cowboys who had relaxed, since leaving the dressing room, in their covert watching of his showing-off antics.

This, then, was Hal Chutney's first entrance upon a motion picture set. He picked himself up out of the dust with the contemptuous remark of the director, "Who is this clown?" ringing in his ears; and discreetly betook himself to the rear of the crowd, which was ranging in a loose group to await instructions.

With Hal's withdrawal from his immediate vicinity, some of the director's injured dignity upon having a mere extra tumble in front of him was soothed, though for the rest of the day he "looked out" on the entire company. For here was a worse sin than if a Horse Guard had tripped and fallen in front of the throne of the King of England during a levee.

Stablemen brought in and tethered to the railing in front of the saloon two dozen restive, wild-looking horses, which Hal eyed with considerable misapprehension. Meanwhile, the director in a raspy and slightly raised voice, through a megaphone which an unctuous assistant held for him, gave curt instructions to the cowboys.

"Now you punchers are inside the saloon, drink up—see? Skinner comes out and mounts his horse—see?—then fires his pistol and dashes away—see? When you hear the pistol you rush out pell-mell—see?—and leap on your horses and ride in pursuit of him—see?"

Hal, listening and nodding with the rest, felt himself trembling all over with nervousness. He looked over the horses with diffident eyes, trying to select a tame looking one. Now, just how was it that he had seen Tom Mix and Bill Dunham jump upon their horses in just such situations? Let's see—from the left? No, from the right. They held the horse's mane with one hand, and the saddle pommel with the other. But first didn't they put a foot in the stirrup? No—they just jumped on in a flying leap from the ground. So his thoughts raced—doubtfully. Somehow those horses backed looked very high above the ground, now that he was faced with the necessity of vaulting upon one. The director was continuing:

"It's a cinch of a scene—see? Nothing but mounting and riding—see? So we won't rehearse. Just shoot right off—see? Mind now, put some life into it—rush give a tury, for you know that this man has just seduced the postmaster's daughter—see? Keep shouting 'he ain't done right up our pal's gal'—see? That will infuse spirit into your acting. All right—let's go!"

Free Foot Comfort DEMONSTRATION Tuesday June 8th

Seven persons out of every ten have some form of foot trouble. It may be weak or broken-down arches, weak ankles, corns, callouses or bunions or probably a case of tired, aching, painful feet. Regardless of what may be the nature of your foot suffering, you will find quick and lasting relief at our store during this special demonstration.

Foot Comfort Expert from Personal Staff of Dr. Wm. M. Scholl

At considerable expense this store has arranged for the services of one of Dr. Scholl's most skilled foot comfort experts. He will be pleased to see, on the above date, all persons suffering from any form of foot troubles. His services are absolutely free.

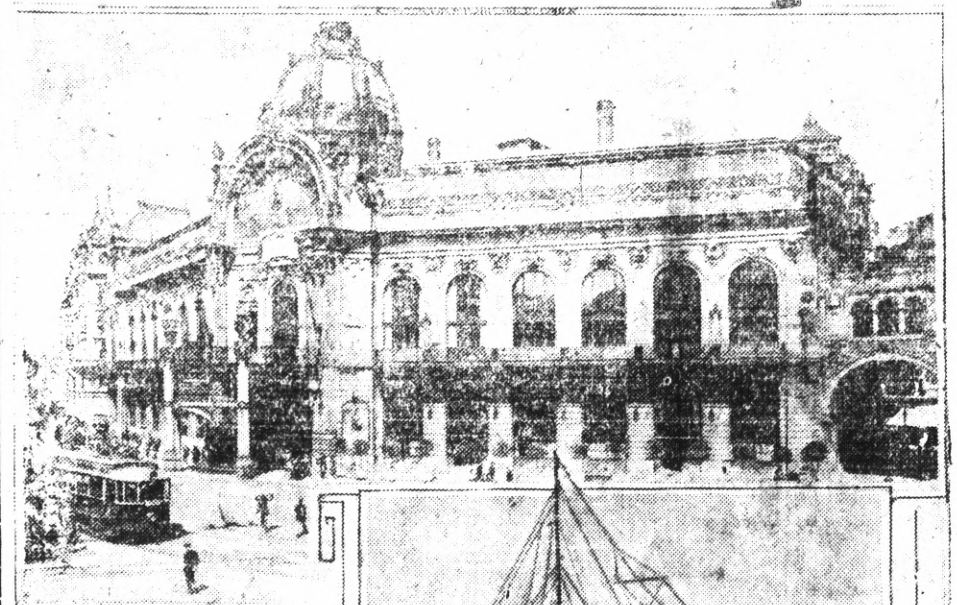

Free Podo-graph Prints of Your Feet

In a few seconds' time, without removing the hose, he can make a perfect impression of your foot that positively shows if you do have foot troubles and to what stage the trouble has progressed. Come in and get a sample of Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads for corns. They remove the cause—friction and pressure. Sure, safe, instant relief.

Progressive Prague Surprises Europe With Powerful New Radio Station

The radio map of Europe has been changed profoundly by the inauguration of a 5000-watt radio broadcasting station at Prague, in the Republic of Czechoslovakia. The installation of this station, one of the six largest in Europe, together with projects such as the irrigation of barren regions in northeastern Bohemia and the connection of the Czech and Slovakian capitals by means of long-distance telephone cable, furnish striking evidence of the progressiveness of that republic.

The new station, which international call OKP has been assigned, is the first of its type to be installed outside of the United States. It was furnished by an associated company of the International Standard Electric Corporation, and is of Western Electric design. Views of the broadcaster and the antenna system are shown in the photographs.

A Czechoslovakian newspaper describes the initial broadcasting at full power as follows:

"At last eight o'clock. Three great strokes upon a gong and imagined—silence, in which slowly died the tone of the metal vibration. The excitement was at its height. This vibration of the metal which you had never heard previously seemed to be a doorway to the paradise of radio; then the voice of the announcer was heard. Immediately all listeners were turned. You could not help believing absolutely that the announcer was standing close beside you; you could hear his respiration and imagined it true only imagined; you could also hear the beating of the announcer's heart. Even he was excited. And then came what we had impatiently expected and dreamed about so often.

Music. Yes, that was it. The sound of the tones, the speech of the instruments. Outside it was raining, the wind was howling, and your room, lighted by an oil lamp, with a carpet costing very little, with a worn sofa and old furniture, changed suddenly into a concert hall. Everything sparkled with newness and with intense life, energy and joy. Time passed as on a summer day until the New Year's wishes of the announcer turned you back to reality."

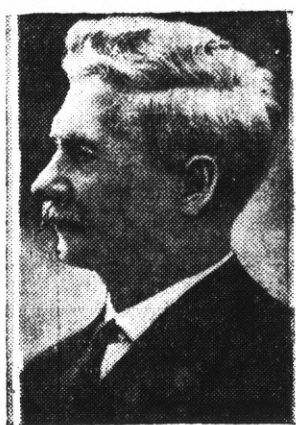

The response of the radio audience was further reported by the press: "This is Western Electric. Suddenly it became the favorite of the amateurs of the whole republic, as can be judged from messages coming in from all parts of our country. The enthusiasm of the amateurs was so great that they even sent to the office to transmit their observations by telegraph. These were telegrams from Jozsef, Tamas, Oskar, Kossuth, Uhorod, even from Dresden, where the reception was very strong."

and clear, without any noises of the station. The modulation was excellent, so that we can rightfully boast of its splendid efficiency. Our listeners will not try to get foreign stations any more because our Western Electric beats them all."

The significance of this station is increased by reason of its nearness to the geographical center of Europe. It is expected to prove an effective instrument in carrying out the broad plans of the Czechoslovakian nation to increase the influence of Prague as a cultural center. The national opera is to be broadcast and the hope is that Prague will become one of the most important musical centers of the world.

The photographs give some idea of the famous Municipal Building with the Smetana Concert Hall, from which concerts will be broadcast. With the excellent musical talent available, reception of distinctive programs throughout the whole of Europe should be assured.

Famous Honeymoon Pair in the South

DEL MONTE, June 9.—Pebble Beach lodge, haven of honeymooners for years, today is harboring two of filmdom's most noted celebrities—Mr. and Mrs. Robert Z. Leonard. Until yesterday Mrs. Leonard was known and loved throughout the world as Gertrude Olmstead, wife of the noted director. Rev. Paul Davies of the First Congregational church in Santa Barbara, performed the marriage service. After a short stay at Pebble Beach they will make their home in Beverly Hills.

You Need More Bile

You need it if you suffer constipation. Bile floods the bowels, keeps them open. You need it for results of impure blood. Germs in the intestines breed those poisons. Bile is the antiseptic which combats those germs. You need it for bowel indigestion, for bile is a digestant. To get more bile you must stimulate the liver. Cathartics never do that. But a gland secretion, derived from beef livers, does. And physicians are prescribing this new help to millions. That secretion is embodied in Dico-lax tablets. The results come quickly—in a few hours. To constipated people they are bringing priceless benefits today.

Victory Highway Subject of Blow At Kiwanis Meet

Members of the Richmond Kiwanis Club yesterday heard Ben Blow, of the National Automobile Association of San Francisco, discuss the features of the Victory Highway which will cross the nation from New York to San Francisco, crossing the Lincoln Highway at only one point. Each county will have a memorial marker similar to the one dedicated on Memorial Day at the bridgehead near Antioch. The names of those from each county who gave their lives during the World War will be engraved on a tablet at the base of the monument.

Homer Patterson was chairman of the day and the attendance prize was won by Edward Kearney. The prize was returned and the proceeds going to the charity fund. Joseph Baer played several piano solos.

Rehearing on New Ferry Is Started

Contending among other points that the proposed Golden Gate ferry from Hyde street to Berkeley would in no way impair the earnings of the Southern Pacific company ferry and would be more convenient to approximately twenty per cent of the traffic crossing the bay, testimony at the hearing for permission to operate the line was resumed yesterday before the state railroad commission.

As fog often comes unexpectedly in the peak period of travel it was stated that ferries operating along a route of one very minute would be a serious question to the safety of passengers. The proposed service on the Golden Gate ferry would be one every three minutes and would not be paralleled by other boats.

It was pointed out that the probable growth in traffic warrants added facilities and that by 1930 traffic will probably have overtaken the present facilities of the terminal.

Ironworkers to Meet Concord on Local Diamond

Concord will send a team of hard playing, hard hitting ball swatters to Richmond on Sunday to go up against the thoroughly rejuvenated Ironworkers. The pastime will start promptly at 2:30 o'clock. The game will be staged at the First Street field and manager Phil Jones' Ironworkers are confident that they will come through at the big end of the score.

Employee in County Office is Married

Miss Floribel Plonsett of Hercules, a member of the office staff of County Assessor George O. Meese, and Ernest S. Larsen, an employee of the Shell Oil company refinery, eloped to Santa Rosa last Saturday and were married, according to word received from Martinez yesterday.

The marriage did not leak out until yesterday and Mrs. Larsen returned to Hercules where she notified her parents. The young couple will make their home in Martinez.

WATCH STOLEN

A thief entered the room of Frank Jones in the Anderson hotel, 148 West Richmond avenue shortly after 11 o'clock yesterday morning and after ransacking the room for money found a watch which he took with him, according to a report made to the police department yesterday.

Dempsey to Face Speeding Charges

(By Universal Service) MADERA, June 9.—Jack Dempsey, world's champion heavyweight boxer who is charged with allowing his chauffeur, Robert Gates, to drive his car at 68 miles an hour on March 28 and who was cited by Traffic officer M. A. Harrison is expected to appear in court here next Monday. As yet the famous boxer has not been heard from since he was cited for speeding. His local attorney, however, is confident he will be present at 10 a.m. on June 11.

Seventy Youths are Discharged by Army

(By Universal Service) SAN FRANCISCO, June 9. The enlistment of seventy youths ranging in age from fourteen to seventeen years to be soldiers were blessed today when the Presidio Army authorities after a long investigation turned the boys over to the police after discharging them from the army on the grounds that they had given false ages when enlisting.

No charges were made against the boys and the police have turned them over to the juvenile authorities to handle their cases and make arrangements for their return to their homes all over the west.

Thought -- Comment

(Continued from Page 1) tory we should not rely on our competitors to collect our imports and deliver our exports for us. And we should not rely on sources of imports and markets for exports that are in effect, under the shadow of our overseas competitors — unless, in turn, the latter can be controlled."

After considering the political and naval aspects of the Washington Conference for the Limitation of Naval Armaments and characterizing the treaty signed there as a dam built only half-way across the stream, because the conference failed to limit light cruisers, submarines and other auxiliaries (since the conference, Japan has laid down or appropriated for 81 sea-going warships, Great Britain 21, and the United States 7), the author considers the principle "trouble spots" of the world, which in his opinion center in Russia. He considers the possibility of a close Russo-German alliance, the extension of Soviet influence to some of the Balkan, Turkey, Persia, Afghanistan, or to the vast resources and population of China, and also, Mussolini's imperialism.

These unsettled conditions throughout Europe and Asia, considered in the light of Russia's large and well-equipped and disciplined military power, and her refusal to attend the conference of the preparatory commission in Geneva are of bad omen to reduction of armaments in Europe unless Russia can be occupied elsewhere so as to minimize any likelihood of her acting aggressively in Europe. This necessity of keeping Russia occupied in another direction makes the probability of another Russo-Japanese war, in the opinion of this critic, about an even chance within the next four years. The situation, out, closely parallels conditions of 1902. The prize, however, instead of being Korea, is much more than all of Manchuria.

"In the event of such war," Gardner says, "the paramount British aim would be the maintenance of the British flag in India. Such a war would injure the prosperity of China and threaten her integrity and would be a matter of particular concern to us, because one-fourth of our overseas trade, now amounting to more than eight billions is across the Pacific, and that part of it that is with China has increased four-fold in only the last ten years."

County Welfare Council to Meet At County Seat

The second meeting of the year of the Contra Costa Welfare Council will be held in Martinez at the Hotel Scott (formerly Hotel Ohem) on June 15, at 7:30 p.m. and is open to all citizens interested in the subject of the evening, "Health." The speaker of the evening will be Miss Beatrice Woodward of the California Tuberculosis Association. Her address will be followed by a discussion by J. Burnside, Miss Hunsinger and T. B. Swift.

The Welfare Council hopes that a large audience will be present at this meeting. The Contra Costa Welfare Council is an organization whose members are actively engaged in county welfare work of some nature. The meetings are held quarterly in the different towns in the county and as a rule are well attended by the members and their guests.

MOTORIST FINED

Police Judge C. A. Odell yesterday fined Mariano Rosales of Oakland $25 with the alternative of 25 days in jail on the charge of reckless driving.

Europe is occupied primarily with safeguarding its own borders and that Great Britain's chief interest is in India and its communications, leaves the maintenance of peace in the Orient in large measure with the United States being so manifestly able to exercise the balance of power determinatively in Eastern Asia that neither Russia or Japan will risk the issue of war," he says.

In the proposed conference for the further reduction of armaments, Gardner believes, the United States would do well to be guided by political and naval realities, not only from the viewpoint of enlightened self-interest but also for the peace of the world.

Popular support of the Washington Conference was won largely by a promise of economy, but it is basically indefensible, in the authors opinion, to make tax reduction the paramount policy for the United States at the hazard of security and world peace.

Martial expenditures, he shows, reduced to the common denominator of the purchasing power of the present day dollar, have increased from four dollars per capita in 1903 to six dollars in 1924. There is much greater room for intelligent economy in other governmental expenditures, which have grown during the same period from twenty-four dollars per capita to eighty-six dollars.

Water Line Holds Up Construction Of Wharf Street

Construction of the roadway to municipal wharf No. 2 is being held up pending the completion of the water line of the East Bay Water company to the inner harbor. City Engineer E. A. Hoffman declared yesterday. Nothing can be done on filling and graveling the roadway until the six-inch main adjacent to the street line is completed, he said.

In order that the roadway can be completed in time for the shipments expected by Harbor Master Jackson H. Misner, Hoffman stated that he had requested the water company to employ additional men to rush the work to completion.

NAZIMOVA STAR IN PICTURE AT THE CALIFORNIA

The Nazimova of "War Brides" and "Revelation" flames again before the cameras in Edwin Carewe's production of "My Son," the First National Picture which opened yesterday at the California Theatre.

The Russian actress transcends even her fine work in "Madonna of the Streets," and gives a performance that for sheer artistry and perfection of technique stands alone in the cinema field.

Carewe proved himself a great director when he produced "The Bad Man" with Holbrook Blinn. He topped that work with "Madonna of the Streets," and "My Son" bids fair to establish him in the class with Griffith and Lubich. With keen touches he paints the picture of the Portuguese fisher woman who loves three men with the simplicity comparable to a real artist's painting and portrait.

Ana Silva, in the story, loves Elvira Fackler, the sheriff, and Felipe Vargas, the fisherman. But more than either of these she loves her son Tony. She gives him all of a mother's love, and all is harmonious until a flippant flapper from the great big city comes to the town. The reaction is volcanic; Tony leads young Tony toward prison walls.

How Ana's faith in her son and the great love she holds for him are justified forms the basis for the most delicious scene here offered to the celluloid appetites of our local fans in some time.

Besides "My Son," boasts the presence of Jack Pickford, Hobart Bosworth, Constance Bennett, Mary Akin, Jan Keith, Charles Murray and Dot Farley, all of whom give splendid performances.

Other features include "Dog Shy," a Charley Chase comedy; "International News," and scenic novelties.

Prisons of Russia Form Basis for Film at Richmond

"Siberia," stupendous Fox Film version of Bartley Campbell's thrilling play of the barren prison of Russia, was shown last night at Richmond Theatre, where it opened a two days' engagement. Alma Rubens and Edmund Lowe, two of the most popular screen players in America, are starred.

The picture is better than the play, for the screen enables one to see behind the scenes, and what on the stage, was merely suggested is vividly portrayed on the silver sheet.

To Victor Schertzinger, the director, goes a great deal of credit for the success of the melodrama. His direction is masterly and his faithfulness to minute details makes this picture the outstanding photograph of the season.

Miss Rubens is admirably fitted for the role of Sonia, and Edmund Lowe, as a dashing officer of the Czar's Guard, plays opposite Miss Rubens.

Other features include "Hello Hollywood," a Lige Conley comedy; and "Prizma," the screen magazine.

Russia Sends Rare Stamps to Exhibit

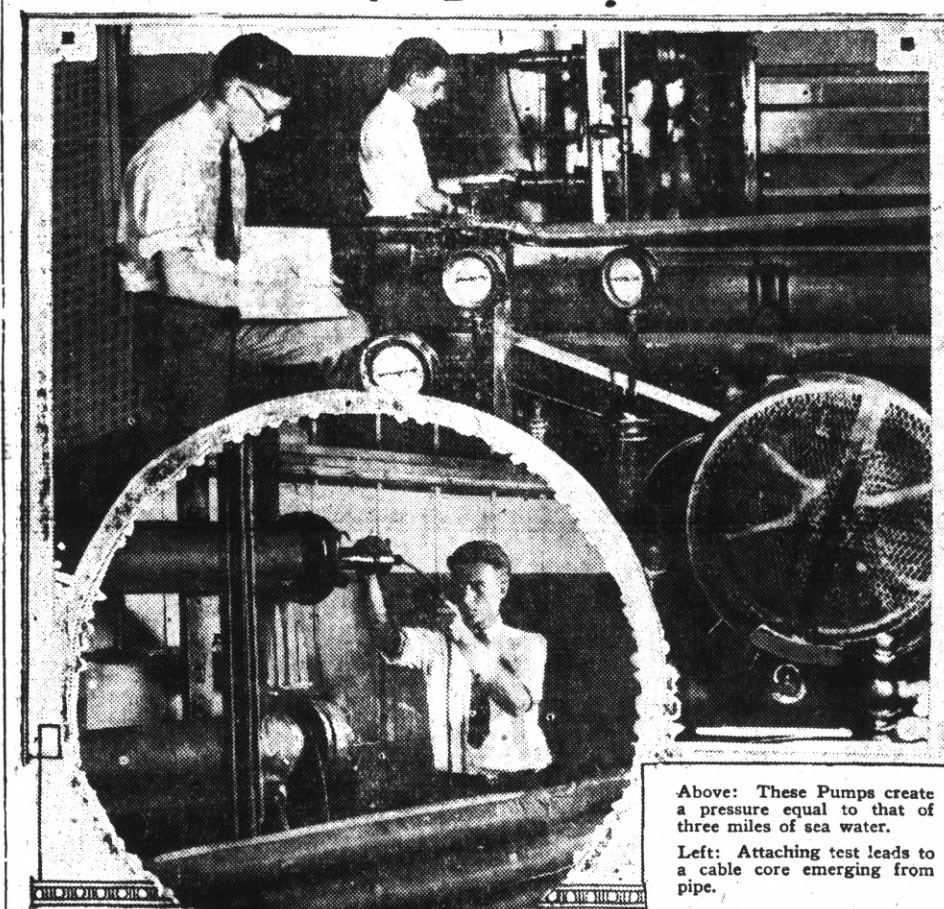

(By Universal Service)
MOSCOW, June 9.—Seventy volumes of the rarest stamps will accompany the Soviet representative to the International Philatelic exhibition to be held in New York in October.

Professor Theodore Tsuschin will take the collection to America and represent the Soviets at the gathering. A complete file of Russian stamps from the beginning of their use, on through the rapid issues of the inflation time and up to date, will be displayed for the first time to American collectors.

A flourishing Philatelic organization has grown up in Russia since the revolution. Stamp collection is a mania with young and old, and is sponsored by the government. The Soviet archives are full of stamp treasures, many of them collections of the former aristocrats.

"Imitation" Ocean Used by Science In Developing New Deep Sea Cable

Above: These Pumps create a pressure equal to that of three miles of sea water.

An artificial ocean has had its part in the development of the Western Electric Company's permalloy cable which was perfected through several years of patient labor and research on the part of the Bell Telephone Laboratories, and then, overnight, revolutionized submarine cable transmission. The first cable of the new type was laid between the Azores and New York; a link to connect the Azores with Emden, Germany, is under manufacture, and contracts have been signed for a permalloy cable to be laid from Suva to Fanning Island in the Pacific. Over these new cables, transmission is possible at from three to five times the rate of speed over cables of the old type of the same size.

The artificial ocean became necessary for several reasons. A permalloy tape is wrapped around the copper conductor of the cable to increase its inductance, and hence the efficiency of transmission. Permalloy is a new alloy of iron and nickel which has remarkable magnetic properties; it is, in fact, the most magnetic substance known. Shortly after the invention of this alloy, it was found that the magnetic properties of the metal are quite sensitive to mechanical stresses, and it was necessary to find if such stresses would be present under deep sea conditions. Would the customary methods of cable manufacture be satisfactory when used with the sensitive permalloy, or what changes should be made? To answer these questions, sample cables had to be made and tested under deep sea conditions.

The most important deep sea condition is the great pressure, since everything at the bottom of the ocean is supporting the pressure of all the water above it. Recalling the weight of a cubic foot of water, it turns out that the pressure one statute mile down in the ocean is somewhat more than a long ton per square inch. A single square foot of the sea bottom only one mile down supports a weight of water greater than a couple of heavily loaded freight cars. What such pressures might do to permalloy-loaded cable was a question which had to be answered.

Specially designed test pipes were installed for tests of cores about twenty feet long, and one pipe fifty feet long was provided. Pressures up to 6,000 pounds per square inch are customary, and it is possible to use 10,000 pounds in one of the pipes, so that we can reproduce conditions more than four miles under the ocean. A very powerful pump is necessary, and for the storage of water under such pressures an hydraulic accumulator was installed. This is essentially a cylinder containing a vertical piston of one square inch sectional area. The upper end of the piston can be loaded with iron weights, up to 10,000 pounds, so that the water pressure within the cylinder, and in the test pipe connected to it, must be the same number of pounds per square inch.

Besides the enormous pressures at sea bottom there is another condition, much less generally known. The water down there is very cold, being around thirty-nine degrees Fahrenheit. The reason for this is simple enough. It is remembered that sea water is denser at this temperature than at higher temperatures, thus leaving the sea bottom at a constant low temperature. To reproduce this condition of the ocean it was necessary to put water jackets around the heavy hydraulic pipes in which the cores are tested and circulate through them water cooled by passing through a tank filled with cracked ice.

The first test conductors were made following as nearly as possible the standard cable practice of the time. The annealed, permalloy wrapped, copper conductors were coated with a sticky resinous material known as Chatterton's compound, just sufficient to cover the surface, before insulating with gutta percha. In such form, the conductor is known as cable core, and many important tests are made at this stage in the manufacturing process. Inductance measurements showed that no serious mechanical stresses had been encountered during covering, so the samples were inserted in the pressure pipes, and the stuffing boxes were tightened down, preparatory to applying the pressure. No serious effects were observed up to this point. But when the pump was started, and the pressure was allowed to increase slowly just as if the cable were sinking into the sea, the inductance of the samples began to decrease, and had fallen to only one-quarter of the desired amount before one mile depth had been reached. Evidently the old type of cable construction would not serve with the sensitive permalloy loading.

The next test was to determine if the permalloy loading was really affected by the sea water pressure, or if it was because the pressure was applied to the outside of the gutta percha only. An uncovered loaded conductor was tested under pressure. Here the water could penetrate under the permalloy loading, and the full sea pressure was applied equally to both sides of the tapes. The inductance was not noticeably affected up to the highest pressures, which showed that if the permalloy floated in a liquid medium, it would not be injured by deep sea pressure.

A solution of the problem was finally found, by the development and proper application of a compound whose quality is that it remains quite fluid at low temperatures. After the permalloy tape is applied and heat treated, the whole conductor is vacuum impregnated and coated with this compound, before the application of the gutta-percha insulation. Now, as the cable is subjected to increasing pressure, the gutta-percha compresses as in the earliest tests, but it is supported by the semi-fluid compound, which conveys the pressure effect to both sides of the permalloy loading, thus leaving it unstressed.

A great deal of work had to be done before arriving at a satisfactory compound, but this and other difficulties were overcome. The first cable of this type is now in satisfactory operation, and is transmitting three or four times as many messages per hour as any of the old-type cables.

AQUITANIA, June 9.—Cardinal Pifel, of Vienna, the oldest cardinal in the Eucharistic Party aboard this vessel, accompanied by Monsignor Ignaz Selpel, former chancellor of Austria, who is still carrying a Bolshevik bullet from an attempted assassination, are two of the noted churchmen who accepted the invitation of Cardinal Mundelein to attend the Chicago Congress because of their desire to show him their gratitude to America for post-war assistance.

Cardinal Pifel recalling the Eucharistic Congress which was held in Vienna, declared he has no doubt the Chicago meeting will eclipse all previous Congresses because, as he said, "organization is the American specialty."

The Aquitania today is sailing along in the warm waters of the gulf stream and the weather is extremely pleasant.

Stupid Censorship Is Killing English Drama Says Coward

(By Universal Service)
LONDON, June 9.—"America has forged well ahead of England in the matter of drama, but if we resolve now to buckle on our armor we can catch up," said Noel Coward, the dramatist actor on his return from New York.

"The reason for our backwardness," he added, "is that we have a stupid system of censorship. There is no censor in America except public opinion and the police—and that is as it should be. In America there is an educated theatre public and a comparatively clean stage."

"The members of the English Censorship committee are all old men who ceased to think twenty-five years ago. If the drama in England wants a new lease of life the first step must be the placing of three young artists on the Censorship committee."

"During the next two or three years I shall write several plays and infuse into them a genuine artistic interest. But I shall disregard all the censorship restrictions, and the result is that such plays will have to be produced in America."

Coward leads the younger school of English playwright in a general revolt against the censorship, although modified versions of his plays have of recent years been staged with great success, exciting sex controversies that have not yet died down.

Mercantile Trust Installs 2,000 New Safe Deposits

The Mercantile Trust Company is installing 2,000 new safety deposit boxes at the Main Branch of the banking house at Sixth street according to an announcement made yesterday by Larkin J. Younce, local manager of the company.

The unprecedented call for safe deposit boxes during the last few days brought on to a great extent by the Standard Oil stock issue to employees has made necessary the addition to the old building in spite of the fact that the new bank at Tenth street and Macdonald Avenue will be completed some time in October.

Soviet Women Urged to Unite

(By Universal Service)
MOSCOW, June 9.—Women of the World Unite! You've nothing to lose but your husbands! Raising this battle cry Axinia Karaseva, modern woman with modern ideas roused her sisters in the village Mertayevka to go on strike against their one time lords and masters.

Axinia had heard much of the new rights for women granted by the Soviet government. She had learned to take a great part in all village committee meetings.

But when Axinia came home one night from a particularly successful oration, her husband met her at the door—and in the way of the old-fashioned Russian who didn't give a snap of his fingers for committees, gave her a thorough beating.

Calling all the women of her village to the school house, Axinia delivered such a fiery declaration on women's rights they all promised to stand by her and go on strike.

That night the women of the village didn't return home. Next morning each husband was dumbfounded to be presented with this ultimatum.

"We, the wives of the village Mertayevka declare that we shall do no more work from now on, and shall not return home so long as our husbands continue to beat us."

Now a formal contract, guaranteeing that wives will never again be beaten in that village, has been drawn up and signed by every man.

ALL STANDARDS DEFEAT THE BARREL HOUSE 2 TO 1

ROBERTS HURLS GOOD GAME FOR WINNING TEAM

Barrel House Holding Down Cellar in League Give Opponents a Real Scare

The Barrel House, way down yonder in the cellar, almost pulled a surprise last night when they lost a tight game to the All Standards to the tune of 2 to 1. For a while it looked as if the Barrel House would come to the fore and win the old ball game—but not so, Napoleon.

The festival started in the first inning and the All Standards did the dirty work. Carson was the lead-off man for the Standards and he promptly took a swat at the ball, coming through with a double to right along the foul line. Nellie Nelson then picked up a willow club and looking around to observe the condition of the atmosphere took a cut at the ball. Wam! Carson pranced home and Nelson stretched his hit into a double. Cutlers then hit into a double play. It was in the last of the second inning that the Barrel House did its stuff. With two men out, "Porky" Cramer was given a walk and immediately mounted Spark Plug and stole second. Sunny Vinnai then drew a neat little single to left, scoring Cramer.

From then on it was a case of trying and in the first of the sixth with the All Standards at bat, R. Nelson popped out to Kress and Matthews stood and watched three strikes whirl by Cutlers. The next man up, promptly got hit and took his base, stealing second at the first chance. Babe Amodee, who had been given plenty of walks by Cotran touched the horsehide for a double that scored Cutlers. Thus went the old ball game.

It was a short and snappy game and was beset with a mixture of humor, pathos, tears, and much joy. Spike Elder seemed to have a grouch and his handsome face was covered with a terrible frown; a frown that made women faint and strong men cry. What aroused his wrath was the fact that he was going to pitch, to take himself out. No one was hurt and little, if any, damage was done. Spike stood on the baselines and heaved sigh after sigh of relief after watching Spike and his troubles.

FIRST INNING
All Standards: Carson doubled to right. Carson scored on a double to center. Matthews struck out. Cutlers hit into double play. Nelson unassisted. One run, two hits, no errors.

SECOND INNING

Kane of Harvard Defeating Paulsen of Yale By Scant 6 Inches in 1-4 Mile Event of Dual Meet

Yale won from Harvard by 1-3 of a point in one of the most bitterly contested track meets in the history of the two universities. The score was Yale 67 2-3, Harvard 67 1-3. One of the upsets of the meet was Kane's defeat of Paulsen in the 440-yards. The Harvard sprinter was first by less than six inches and Clarke of Yale was third. The time was 1-5 seconds.

WHO WILL FIGHT DEMPSEY IS THE AMERICAN?

NEW YORK, June 9.—Boxing fans, many of whom are not averse to a tussle with the daily cross-word puzzle while riding to and from their weekly dissipation are now trying to figure out whether the name of Jack Dempsey's opponent for the title fight to which Tex Rickard has signed him, will be a five-letter word meaning a "patient waiter" or a six-letter combination standing for a "fighting Marine—sally in need of practice." They are wondering whether to letter in W-I-L-L-S or T-U-N-N-E-Y along with the known quantity D-E-M-P-S-E-Y.

Whether or not the gentleman finally designated to oppose Mr. Dempsey is vertical or horizontal, at the end of the bout, depends upon the condition of Jack's long idle and much discussed maulers.

When the fans have settled to their satisfaction the identity of Dempsey's next opponent they must then adjust their thinking caps a bit more firmly and turn their attention to solving the question of the fight's location.

At present the ledger shows a 50-50 toss-up between the Yankee stadium and Boyle's Thirty Acres in Jersey, with the ink which marks the Yankee stadium's 50 just a bit blacker.

When the answer to these boxing conundrums have been found the ambitious worker might set himself to the task of finding out whether Tex Rickard intends to defy the ultimatum of the Boxing Commission which says that Willis is the logical contender, and if he does whether the commission will be powerful enough to padlock his Madison Square Garden, as it has threatened.

The Dempsey-Carpentier fight which Rickard promoted, was called the "Battle of the Century." The present bout promises to become the "puzzle of the century."

An astonishing feature of this mysterious bout is the matter-of-fact manner in which the fans have accepted the news that Dempsey, looked upon by most fans and many critics as through with the ring, will once more discard the grease paint of the movie actor for the stubble beard of the ring to attempt to prove to the world that he is still the greatest human fighter living.

There is but one answer and it is spelled—Tex Rickard. Tex Rickard at various intervals in the past has given out the news that such-and-such gentlemen would meet in such-and-such a place at such-and-such a time to decide the heavyweight championship of the world.

The gentlemen have invariably met although United States governors have said that they shouldn't. It is true that the time and the place of the meetings were often changed. So the fans have confidence in Tex Rickard.

But somehow or other the fans can't help but feel that before another World's Series has gone into history and the leaves have once more formed a fall carpet, that the miracle will have taken place—Jack Dempsey will have entered the ring in defense of his title.

Tommy Burns of Detroit Preparing for Battle With Jack Delaney at Charity Show in Brooklyn

Tommy Burns, who hopes to defeat Jack Delaney, the clever hard-hitting light heavyweight of Bridgeport, Conn., and thus earn a chance to meet Champion Paul Berlenbach, is shown punching the bag at Italian Jack Herman's place in Yonkers, N. Y. It had been hoped to bring Delaney and Berlenbach together at a benefit show in Brooklyn, but Tex Rickard and Berlenbach signed and so Promoter Humoort Fugazy had to look around for a substitute. He selected the Detroit fighter.

FIREMEN AND PORT COSTA WILL TANGLE

Following the trimming that the Richmond Firemen gave the M and L furniture company of Oakland to the tune of 6 to 4 on Sunday at the First street park, the local team has decided to cast around in the direction of Port Costa for new worlds to conquer.

Port Costa will be the next victim and the local red-coats will go there in full force, ready to meet the team there.

As usual Jiggs Wright will pitch for the local team and it is expected that he will do the same as he did in the game on Sunday, for on this occasion he sent 15 men to the benches by the strike-out route.

Laveneau, will don the iron mask and stand behind the plate and it is expected that again he will star at the bat. He gathered a sweet home run on Sunday over the right field fence and he is out to make a record for himself as a local Babe Ruth.

The Port Costa team so far has given plenty of good teams a good beating, but the local team is confident that they will come out at the big end of the score, sitting pretty on the top of the world.

POTTERY NO. 1 OF S. S. CO. IS CLOSED DOWN

Operations at the Richmond pottery of the Standard Sanitary Manufacturing plant No. 1, located at Sixteenth street and Barrett avenue were discontinued yesterday and the plant will be used temporarily as a warehouse, according to an announcement by the company. The change is part of the expansion plans of the company, announced several months ago, when the announcement was made that the company would erect a new plant at San Pablo.

Overproduction is given as the reason for the change at this time, although the company had decided to abandon plant No. 1, as soon as the improvement at San Pablo was completed.

The following is the announcement made yesterday by P. A. Birkholm, acting manager of the plant:

June 9, 1926.
Commencing this date, Standard Sanitary Manufacturing company has decided to cease operations at Pottery No. 1, located at 16th and Barrett avenue, Richmond, due to large overstock of ware on hand. This plant will be used as a temporary warehouse and Plant No. 2, at San Pablo, will be run to full capacity.

In all probability Plant No. 1 will remain closed, until the new plant has been completed and operating. Construction operations on this new plant will commence in the very near future. It is the policy of the company to try to keep their old employees, and we will do our utmost to retain these men at Plant No. 2.

Bridge Opening To Be Featured By Big Carnival

ANTIOCH, June 9.—A water carnival is to be held in conjunction with the bridge opening celebration and Diablo Valley April festival, which is to be held at Antioch, June 12 to 15. Prizes for surf riding, motor boat races will be awarded.

Following the coronation of the queen Friday evening June 11 the members of Harding Post No. 161 American Legion will stage the coronation ball in its new Memorial hall.

An elaborate program of fireworks has been arranged for each evening of the celebration including the eruption of Mount Diablo. Bombs and red rockets will announce the official opening of the celebration.

The queen and her maids will be guests of the American Toll Bridge company on a visit to San Francisco Wednesday and Thursday of June 16 and 17 at which time a dinner will be served in honor of the royal party at the Hotel Whitecomb to be followed by a theatre party at the Orpheum. Two prominent clubwomen of Contra Costa county will chaperon the young ladies to the metropolis.

Word was received today that a caravan of fifty members of the Foreign Trade club of the San Francisco chamber of commerce would attend the bridge opening on Saturday June 19, traveling in autos and escorted by a coterie of traffic officers.

On Saturday night members of the Scouts will hold a ball in the Masonic temple and there will be another dance at the Legion hall. F. J. Silva is in charge of a series of street dances.

The street carnival will open on June 16, at which time the city of Antioch will be illuminated with thousands of electric lamps. State Senators Jack Inman of Sacramento county and Will Sharkey of Contra Costa county have been invited to deliver short addresses. Other prominent guests to speak include Sheriff R. R. Yeale, Lieutenant Governor C. C. Young, John C. Little, Ray Davis, Superintendent J. Tremmuth, Mayor Donlon, and O. M. Champlin.

New Water Mains To Be Laid Here

Replacement of the water mains on Macdonald avenue from Twenty third street to Fifteenth street will be started soon by the East Bay Water company, according to an announcement made yesterday by Fred J. Klaus, chief engineer of the company. City Manager James A. McVittie. The improvements are made necessary by considerable leakage reported during the past months.

In regard to the mains on Garard boulevard which the city manager asked removed to adjoining property so that the mains would not interfere with the upkeep of the street construction which has started, Klaus declared that the water company would communicate with the city this week.

The company has previously taken the attitude that since the pipe has been laid but two years, the expense will not warrant the change at this time.

Washington Girls Who Hope For Government Training Camps Do Some Training on Their Own Account

Sergt. "Mike" Donaldson, World War hero, is shown training some of the capital city nurses in preparation for the government training camps they are asking for.

Sergt. "Mike" was emphatic in stating that it was not the goose-stepping he was teaching them, but merely one of the lessons in physical development, which is the real purpose of the proposed training camps for girls.

C. C. Directors Discuss Opening Of New Hotel

Plans for the opening of the new Carquinez hotel together with the advertising of the hostelry were discussed yesterday by the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce at their weekly luncheon. Charles B. Hamilton, lessee of the new building was present and told the members of his plans for the formal opening.

Robert Wren, 1224 Dissell avenue, was awarded the $25 prize for the name of the hotel. Wren is a student at the Richmond high school. The prize will be given him at the opening on or about July 1.

Accompanying Wren's suggestion were the following reasons for the name:

"The Strait of Carquinez, for years a dividing line between Northern California and the bay region, will, when bridged, not only make transportation more convenient, but the people of the northern part of the state, who for years have considered the ferry trip across the strait a voyage into foreign territory, will be more closely united to the people of the bay region through the bridge."

"Richmond, the first large city on this side of the strait, will derive untold benefits from the bridge, which I believe will do for present day Richmond what the harbor did for old Richmond. Consequently I believe that the hotel should be named 'Hotel Carquinez.'"

Parade of New Washing Machines Is Staged Here

Headed by a calope, twenty-five automobiles bearing banners and machines advertising the new Easy Washers, being demonstrated at the V. G. Electric company, toured the streets of Richmond yesterday afternoon. In the parade was V. G. Blake, head of the electric company, demonstrating the machine.

The Easy Washer differs from other makes in that it has no wringer, but has two tubes, one of which dries one batch of clothes while another is being washed in the other tub. The clothes are ready for ironing when taken from the tub, thus saving the housewife the necessity and work of hanging the clothes on the line.

Residents of Richmond are invited to attend the demonstration now being conducted and see for themselves the work accomplished by this new washer.

Mrs. Mary D. Brown, 1109 Clinton avenue, accompanied by her niece, Mrs. T. E. Shore, of Hollister, will leave on June 20, for Chicago and other eastern points, where they will make a visit of four months with relatives and friends.

Warmth of Sun Varies Little Each Century

FRANK E. MASON
PARIS, June 9.—The warmth of sun shining on the earth, has varied only slightly during the last billion years, and we have no reason to worry about its cooling for another billion years is the assurance of French scientists, who are calculating our planet's age.

"Study of radio-active minerals provides us with a simple method of estimating the age of the earth's crust," explains Prof. Chas. Nordmann of Paris. "Uranium is a radio-active body that disintegrates little by little, forming different intermediary substances such as radium, to end, when its radio-active energy is exhausted, in a radio-lead."

"The speed of these transformations is constant and is well known. In one million years, uranium produces lead equal to eight one-thousandths the weight of the original. The percentage of radio-lead and uranium present in an ore, gives the age of the metal since its crystallization."

Such calculations we estimate that life existed on our earth one billion years ago. During these billion years, the sun was never three times more brilliant, nor three times less brilliant than it is today. For in the first case, the heat of the sun would have boiled the oceans, and in the second, it would have frozen them solid.

Either of these two catastrophes would have interrupted evolution which has continued unbroken for a billion years to our day.

Since the father is always older than the child, we can conclude that the sun, older than the earth hasn't varied but a small fraction during all these geological years. The sun therefore is tens of billions of years old.

I hope these figures will set at rest the minds of fanatics who worry themselves into sanatoriums with fear that the sun may soon cool off and bring our earthly existence to a sudden end.

A decision was reached to arrange an early conference with the Contra Costa board of supervisors to discuss the financing of the two projects.

The fish ranch road if developed will give Berkeley a direct entrance to the Tunnel road and Contra Costa county and divert much of the traffic from Claremont, a fashionable residence district.

The Wildcat canyon road would increase traffic facilities from Berkeley through Contra Costa county.

At a recent conference between the supervisors of Alameda and Contra Costa counties it was shown that finances of Contra Costa county would not warrant the improvements at the present time, due to lack of road funds in this county.

NEW SEARCH IS STARTED FOR RICH YOUTH

TRENTON, (N. J.), June 9.—Troopers of New Jersey and Pennsylvania searched every barn, fisherman's shack and unoccupied summer cottage along both sides of the Delaware river within a three mile radius of Trenton this afternoon in a futile effort to find Walter S. Ward, missing New York millionaire, whose name was signed to a message of distress found tucked under the leg band of a carrier pigeon.

The bird fell exhausted at Bryn Athyn, Pa., today. The message, written in pencil on brown wrapping paper, dangled from its leg. It read:

I am held a prisoner in a shack three miles above Trenton on the east side of the Delaware river. Please send help. Hurry. Ward. Tonight six troopers of the Wilburtha State police here and four from the Doylestown, Pa., station were still working on the case.

Sergeant Cunningham of the New Jersey headquarters troop, is awaiting a reply to a telegram sent to A. S. Johnson, president of the International Federation of Carrier Pigeon Franchises, Washington, D. C., asking for the name of the owner of the pigeon. The band on the bird's leg bore identification number I F 24 A-5273, indicating that the pigeon was registered at Johnson's headquarters in 1924 under the number A-5273.

The Doylestown State police, who have the message, communicated with Captain Ayres of the New York missing persons bureau, and asking for a specimen of Ward's handwriting, to check with that found on the note.

Captain Ayres recently ordered a discontinuance of the search for Ward, after visiting the spot in the rear of the Pennsylvania railroad station where Ward's car was found early last month with its windshield smashed. Captain Ayres discussed the case with the Trenton police, and upon his return to New York expressed the belief that Ward had gone into hiding.

Ward is a son of George F. Ward, multi-millionaire bread manufacturer.

Mrs. Peggy Reeves Gets Jail Sentence

Mrs. Peggy Reeves was yesterday denied probation by Superior Judge Fred V. Wood of Alameda county, and sentenced from one to ten years in San Quentin. Mrs. Reeves is the last of the defendants in the famous Golett Oil swindle in connection with the sale of securities throughout the Bay district.

An earnest plea in behalf of Mrs. Reeves was made by her attorney, Ernest Pagnuolo, because of the alleged ill-health of the defendant, but Judge Wood said that he could not discriminate because of sex. Probation had not been recommended by the probation officer.

Miss Ella Flynn stated in an interview that Mrs. Reeves practically talked herself into prison by offering to reward those "who might or could aid her in her relief."

Mrs. Reeves was sentenced on conspiracy to commit grand larceny and the other charge, that of violating the state securities act, was dismissed upon the motion of the district attorney's office and Judge Wood allowed Mrs. Reeves to withdraw her plea of guilty.

Eagles Endorse State Retirement Pensions

YOSEMITE, June 9.—A strong endorsement of the resolution presented here today by Committee chairman William Haggerty of San Francisco advocating the old age retirement pension act for California, definitely assured this measure continued support of the Fraternal order of Eagles in the next session of the legislature. This bill vigorously supported by the Eagles passed the last meeting of the legislature under guidance of state Senator Daniel Murphy of San Francisco and Assembly William Byrne of Los Angeles.

Gen. Ludendorff May Be Married Again

(By Universal Service)

BERLIN, June 9.—With the one great romance of his life just shattered, General Eric Ludendorff is reported to be contemplating a new marriage as soon as his pending divorce is granted.

The pending divorce according to friendly of family circles, the end of a great love which shows Germany's "Iron Hand" in an entirely new human light. A love for which Mrs. Ludendorff left her wealthy first husband to marry the simple army captain and for which Ludendorff himself risked expulsion from the army. For the unhappy ending of the romance especially blame the unfortunate domestic situation caused by Ludendorff's many political extravagances.

The Ludendorffs were married in 1909 after the divorce and remarriage of the first Mrs. Ludendorff, then a celebrated beauty. Only the intervention of Count Holmuth von Moltke, chief of staff at the outbreak of the recent war who recognized Ludendorff's genius, is said to have enabled Ludendorff to remain in the army.

Although a fashionable hostess and well known for her beauty and spirit Mrs. Ludendorff was a poor housekeeper for the man.

An excessive use of stimulants especially narcotics, Mrs. Ludendorff is said to have smoked sixty cigarettes a day—made her ill. Her husband's efforts to curb the habit were in vain. All this is said to have undermined the romance unless both decided it better to separate.

The general is taking all the blame in the suit and has agreed to leave her a great part of his pension retaining only 3,000 marks a year for himself.
